DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

1. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

2. Claim 1 is rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claim 1 in Allowance of 09/841,135.

Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because claim 1 in Allowance of 09/841,135 encompasses the limitations of claim 1 of instant application. Moreover, omission of a reference element whose function is not needed would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art. It is well settled that the omission of an element and its functions is an obvious expedient if the remaining elements performs the same function as before In re Karlson, 163 USPQ 184 (CCPA 1963). Also note Ex parte Rainu, 168 USPQ 375 (Bd. App. 1969).

Claim 1 in Allowance of 09/841,135, recites "generating information in the first system" to be extracted in a first conversion system (extracting data; routing the extracting data); the first conversion system converting the generated information to a master information system (an intermediate format) and routing to the second conversion system whereby a second data format native to the second system is stored (a format compatible with the second database structure).

What is not found in claim 1 of instant application is the "master data format comprises a finite length data packet having a unique value that has a relationship between the unique value and information in a relational database.

However, light of the missing wherein clause, the remaining function has not changed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Notani et al U.S. Patent Number 6,397,191.

Re Claim 1, fig. 14 teaches a Data Source 90 (extracting data from the first system) to be routed to Transformer Component 96 (a first conversion server) to convert the native data format of Data source to Transfer Object (an intermediate format) and routed to Transformer Component 98 (a second conversion server) to be converted to a data format native to be stored at the Data Destination (a format compatible with the second database structure) wherein the data format is converted either EDI or XML (See col. 15, lines 20-42).

Re Claim 2, wherein the Data Destination requests data at the Data source (response to an external request).

Re Claim 3, wherein the Data Source initiates storing to the Data Destination (a trigger operation at the first system).

Re Claim 4, wherein fig. 9 teaches the enterprises interconnected over TCP/IP connection (routing data over a network).

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 5-7 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

In combination with claims 1 and 5, prior art fails to that each record including at least one index and the step of converting in the first conversion server operable to convert the index compatible with the first database structure to an intermediate index that is relationally associated with the index in the first database structure.
